

Ed Travis

SO YOU HAVE TO BUY A GIFT FOR A GOLFER

To some of us it may seem to be too early but stores are already putting up Christmas decorations and catalogues are filled with gift items...and its' not even Thanksgiving though I did see the other day 40% of Americans do start Christmas shopping by November 1.

In any event and in the spirit of the season-to-be we will over the next few weeks provide you with some ideas of gifts to suit most every golfer. Our guide though, is a bit different, in that we are familiar with every one of these items having tried, tested and enjoyed them over the past year.

So here goes—if you have comments please make them in the holiday spirit.

Sun Mountain

The idea of not having to carry your clubs through the airport is certainly appealing and wheeled padded travel bags are a common sight around the world but if you aren't familiar Sun Mountain's Club Glider you're missing out. Club Glider ($290) has rugged construction, lots of padding and useful pockets but the standout feature is it has four wheels so it is a breeze to pull, maneuver and even wait in line. The front wheels easily lock into place when needed and fold back when not. Club Glider may not be able to make transporting clubs fun but certainly less of a hassle.

